Years in the Making, SIGGRAPH 2021 is Here!
A message from the SIGGRAPH 2021 Conference Chair Pol Jeremias-Vila

For 2021, my team and I worked hard to evolve that format in an effort to ensure we could improve upon what was established so the community could, once again, share its creations and continue to learn from each other. SIGGRAPH 2021 is a true celebration of computer graphics and interactive techniques, and I would like to share some of my favorite highlights with you.

The SIGGRAPH Budget
A message from the ACM SIGGRAPH Chair Adam Bargteil

One of the most frequent criticisms I hear about SIGGRAPH is that the organization is opaque or, equivalently, I hear about a lack of transparency. To the extent that this critique is fair, it is not due to a desire for secrecy (there are only a handful of things that are confidential), instead, it is because of the difficulty of communicating all that an organization like SIGGRAPH is doing.

Results of the Conference Papers Program Survey
A message from the ACM SIGGRAPH Chair Adam Bargteil

I wrote last month about a proposal for a new Conference Papers program. I want to thank everyone who participated in the survey. This idea has been kicking around for years and it is nice to see some momentum building. Learn more about the survey results and next steps by clicking the "Read more" link below.

Panel Preview: 4 DEI Resources Worth Reading to Help You Understand Inequality

On Friday, 13 August, SIGGRAPH 2021 is set to host the Panel "Creating a Diverse Workplace With Authentic Multicultural Voices: How Can We Create Real Long-Term Equality?", which will offer an honest, blunt discussion of the non-white studio experience from persons of color. Read on for four resources to further your DEI education, whether you are able to join the SIGGRAPH 2021 Panel or not. Then, ask yourself: How can I be part of the solution to creating long-term equality?
